Search continues for New York prison escapee Sweat

(CNN) — If not for some gunfire, and his urge to cough, escaped murderer Richard Matt -- who was shot dead Friday -- might still be free. With prison-break partner David Sweat, also a convicted murderer, still on the lam Saturday, New York state officials are counting on another misstep. "He's been on the run now for three weeks," Franklin County Sheriff Kevin Mulverhill said of Sweat. "He's tired. He's fatigued. He's hungry. He's going to make a mistake." About 1,200 federal, state and local law enforcement officers are searching vehicles at roadblocks and scouring dense woods in upstate New York for the now lone escaped inmate. Since Sweat and Matt broke out of the maximum security prison in Dannemora together -- and appeared to stick together on their flight from the law -- authorities were hopeful they could be right on Sweat's heels after encountering Matt. Searchers had at times followed two sets of footprints, but when they gunned Matt down one day after his 49th birthday, there was no sign of Sweat nearby. So, on all-terrain vehicles and in helicopters, they continued looking for the man who has eluded them for three weeks, using infrared vision devices to peer through the night.

More than 500 injured in explosion at Taiwan water park

(CNN) - Taiwan's Ministry of Health and Welfare put out a call for medical supplies and skin grafts for the hundreds injured after flammable powder exploded in midair at a recreational water park, Taiwanese media reported. By Sunday evening, there were no fatalities, but the total number of injuries had risen to 524, according to a Ministry of Health and Welfare report cited by the CNA news agency. More than 40 hospitals are treating casualties, CNA reported. Most of the victims are Taiwanese, but 13 foreigners were injured, CNA said. The majority of injured foreigners are female. They include: four women from Hong Kong, two from mainland China, two from Japan, and one each from Macau, Singapore and Malaysia. Other victims include a "European or American" man and one male of unknown national origin. Of the injured, 182 are hospitalized in intensive care units, New Taipei public health officials said. More than 60 have been discharged after treatment. Firefighters said the firestorm erupted around 8:30 p.m. Saturday (8:30 a.m. ET), when a flammable powder substance blew up over a stage at Formosa Fun Coast, according to a CNA report. Video showed a massive fireball suddenly engulfing the stage, followed by screaming people running for their lives through flames. "The fire came too fast and nobody was able to run," said witness Huang Guan Zhang, 19. "Everybody was burned. ... Nobody could save others and people suffered severe burns." Some people used large, inflated inner tubes as stretchers to carry out the injured, CNA reported. After visiting with hospitalized victims, Taiwan's Premier Mao Chi-Kuo announced a ban on color powder events while the incident is being investigated, according to CNA. In a video distributed by the government, he said the ban would be in place until color powder can be proved safe. President Ma Ying-Jeou also met with people injured in the fire. He said the Taiwanese government would help the victims and promised a full investigation. Five people have been questioned in connection with the blast, according to Tu Yi Te, secretary in chief of the Luzhou District police department. He said two of them are considered to be suspects -- the organizer of the party and the person in charge of lighting and hardware. They have been brought to the prosecutor for further questioning, Tu said.

- The Pacific Crest Trail (PCT) is closed from Whitewater Preserve to Onyx Summit.

Proclamations

- San Bernardino County updated their proclamation of a local emergency with a request for a Governor’s proclamation and a Presidential Declaration of a Major Disaster.

SITUATION SUMMARY

Hoopa Valley Tribe Water Shortage

- On 06/27/15 at 1325 hours the California State Warning Center was advised by the Cal OES Tribal Liaison Duty Officer (TLDO) that the Hoopa Valley Tribe, Humboldt County, was requesting a 2-3 day supply of bottled drinking water for approximately 150 people. The request was increased to a confirmed final total of 300 individuals for 3 days.
- Per CDO as of 06/27/15 at 1637 hours:
 - Hoopa has had several recent arson fires that have depleted the water supply, and also there is debris that is clogging the intake valve to the water treatment plant.
 - The tribe is working with a local store near tribal land to get water, though there is not much.
 - The County does not have access to water, though they are contacting local stores to see what they may be able to provide, though the tribe would have to drive 1+ hours to the urban area. They do have a truck they can use to haul some water.
- The Hoopa Valley Fire Chief, Rod Mendez advised the TLDO that a Mandatory Water Conservation Order was issued to all Hoopa Valley Residents due to depleted reserves which caused extreme water shortages in the Hoopa Valley.
- Per Humboldt County as of 06/27/15 at 1656 hours, the request is now for approximately 300 individuals for an unspecified time.
- A conference call was held between Cal OES, Humboldt County, Red Cross, and the Hoopa Valley Tribe at 1730 hours.
 - American Red Cross (ARC) has secured 3 liters (1 gallon) of drinking water per person for 3 days
 - As of 1913 hours, ARC advised that 7,200 16oz bottles of water are enroute to the Tribe with an ETA of 0200 hours, 6/28/15.
 - Different methods of funding and supply are being examined in the event that the Tribe will require more water after 3 days.
 - The Tribe will work to clear the water treatment plant intakes and observe to see if the tanks will fill.
 - The Tribe is requesting that the water be delivered to The Hoopa Wildland Fire Center. They will distribute the water. They have no other requests at this time.
- Cal OES Duty Officers are gathering information and providing updates as they become available.

Cal EOC Incident – 2014 Drought

- SOC / Inland REOC remains activated in support of 2014 Drought

Weather of Concern

- Hot and dry conditions have primed fuels for enhanced fire danger can be expected this weekend through much of Northern California and the Eastern Sierras.
- Thunderstorms with little rainfall and gusty winds could cause fire starts and quick spread.
- Increasing moisture with storms could cause debris flows near burn scars as the weekend progresses.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County: http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/www_bc_cal.php

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION:

WEATHER

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA AND CENTRAL COASTAL AREAS:

Eureka Weather:

An approaching upper level low off the California coast will bring the potential for isolated to scattered thunderstorms from late this afternoon through the end of the weekend primarily across the interior. Temperatures over the interior will be closer to normal through Sunday with hotter temperatures returning next week.

Medford Weather:

Thunderstorms yesterday were smaller compared to Friday. This was mainly due to the lack of an upward atmospheric movement moving through to initiate storms. Today will not be so quiet and temperatures will be cooler as a result of the increased cloud cover.

Reno Weather:

High pressure over the Great Basin and low pressure off the California coast will continue to funnel moisture resulting in chances for thunderstorms through the upcoming week. Some storms may produce dry lightning and strong outflow winds tomorrow. Warm temperatures will continue through next week, with good potential for another heat wave starting Wednesday.

San Francisco Weather:

Isolated light showers may continue until mid-morning today mainly across portions of the North and East Bay. Otherwise drier conditions will develop today with little change in temperatures from yesterday. A warming trend is forecast from Monday through Wednesday, especially inland, as high pressure builds over California. The heat could become rather oppressive inland by Tuesday. Slight cooling is then expected late in the week.

CENTRAL CALIFORNIA AND SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY:

Sacramento Weather:

Not as hot today, then heat returns next week. Some afternoon Sierra thunderstorms can be expected throughout the week, mostly south of Interstate 80.

Hanford Weather:

A surge of monsoonal moisture will provide an increased threat of showers and isolated thunderstorms mainly across the mountains and desert through Thursday. Otherwise partly cloudy skies and above average temperatures continue to persist.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA:

Los Angeles Weather:

Upper-level high pressure will remain in place over the Great Basin for much of the week bringing varying amounts of monsoonal moisture. This will carry a slight chance of thunderstorms to the mountains and deserts for most if not all of the week. Temperatures are expected to be above normal, especially away from the coast with some cooling expected by the end of the week into the holiday weekend.

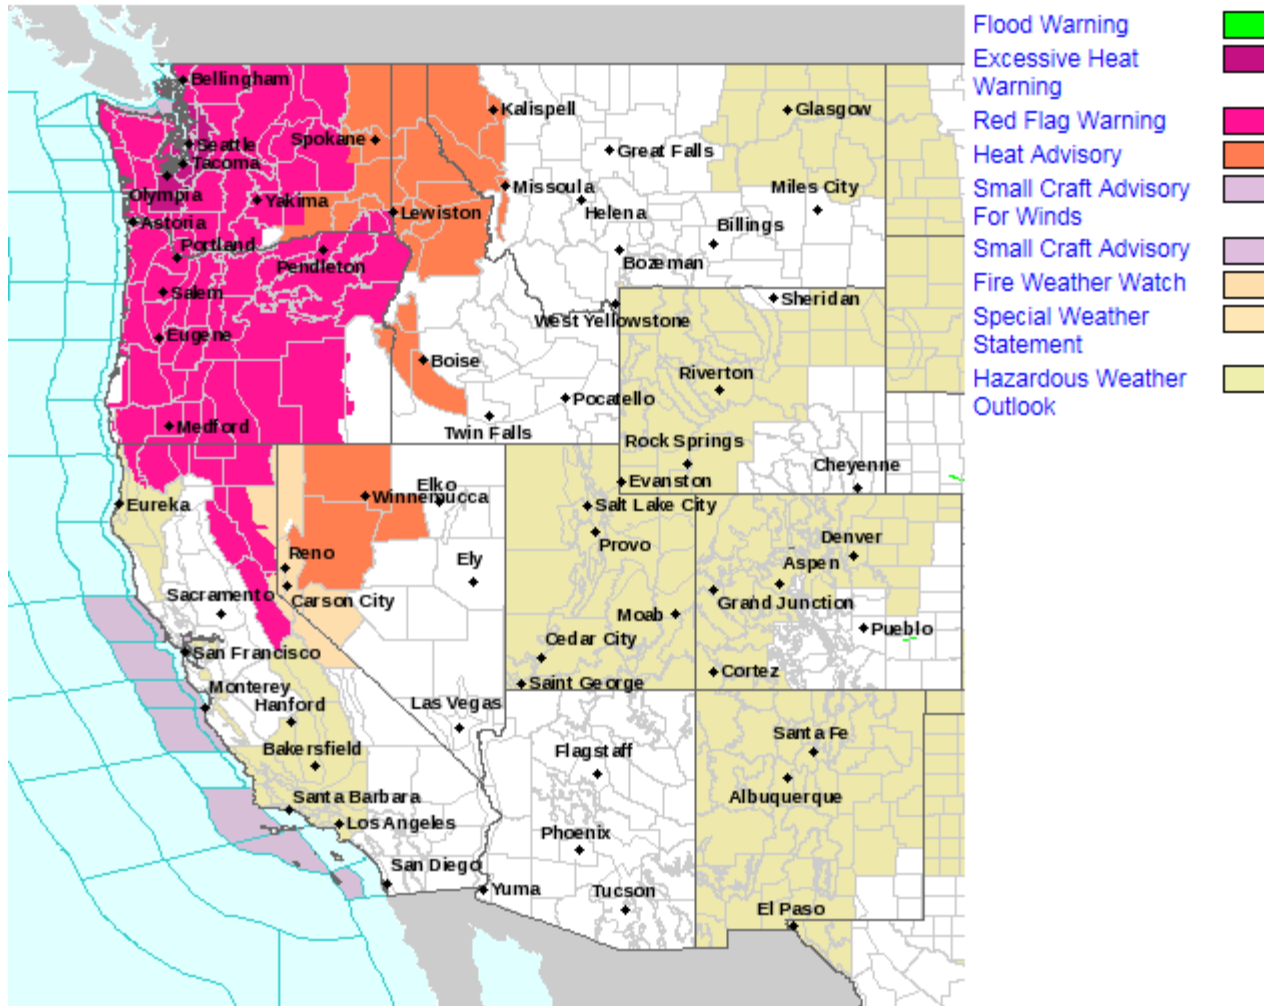

Extreme Southwestern California including Orange, San Diego, Western Riverside and Southwestern San Bernardino Counties:

An abundant flow of mid and high level monsoonal moisture will continue into Monday with a slight chance of afternoon thunderstorms near the mountains today and a little greater chance for afternoon thunderstorms near the mountains Monday and Tuesday. A slight of afternoon thunderstorms, mainly for the mountains, will continue for much of the rest of the week. A shallow marine layer and weak onshore flow will keep coastal areas cooler with a greater return of night and morning coastal low clouds and fog later in the week.

Southeast California Weather:

Several evenings will carry a slight chance for thunderstorms to move into the populated lower desert areas. The most likely outcome in those areas will be gusty winds and some blowing dust, but very localized brief heavy rain will also be possible. Afternoon temperatures will remain slightly above normal though below the excessive levels experienced the past couple weeks.
